Impact Awards

Faculty Awards
Application Requirements

Nominee's Information
- Name, institution, title, etc.
- Photograph

Letter of Nomination or Support
- For the Lynton Award: Please address the nominee's community engagement as integrated across their faculty roles (teaching, research/creative activity, and/or service), how their work reflects the values of social justice in a diverse democracy, and the impact their work has had on the community, their department/college/school/institution, and their discipline. More details on selection criteria for the Lynton Award can be found here.
- For the Ehrlich Award: Please address how the nominee's work is in line with the selection criteria for the award: (1) Evidence of deeply-engaged, high quality academic work; (2) Evidence of community collaboration and change; (3) Evidence of institutional impact. More details on selection criteria for the Ehrlich Awards can be found here.

Curriculum Vitae/Resume
If research or creative activity is expected in your faculty role, please indicate clearly on your CV which scholarly products are the result of your community-engaged scholarship. This may include publications in academic venues like peer-reviewed journals and university press books, and/or a broad range of products, including by not limited to published reports, exhibits and multimedia forms of presentations, installations, clinical and other service procedures, programs and events, policy briefs, court briefings, and legislation.

Description of Community Engagement (Ehrlich Award only)
Upload an essay that specifically addresses the 3 selection criteria. (Word limit: 2,800)

Description of Community Engagement (Lynton Award only)
Enter brief narratives addressing the following questions:

1. Please describe your practice of community engagement in teaching, research or creative activity, and service. Note: If your position does not include research or creative activity in addition to teaching and service, please make that clear and know that reviews of your application will take that into account. (Word limit: 750)
2. What is/are the public issue(s) that your engaged scholarship addresses? How is/are the issue(s) identified and contextualized within a framework of social justice in a diverse democracy? How has your practice evolved over time? (Word limit: 750)
3. Describe how dimensions of your faculty role are integrated through community engagement in ways that are mutually-reinforcing. Note: If your position does not include research or creative activity in addition to teaching and service, please make that clear and know that reviews of your application will take that into account. (Word limit: 400)
4. How does your community engagement practice enact the qualities of reciprocity, mutual respect, shared authority, and co-creation of goals and outcomes? (Word limit: 500)
5. Provide examples of teaching and learning activity in which students and community partners are or have been collaborators. (Word limit: 300)

6. Provide examples of research/creative activities in which students and community partners are or have been collaborators -- or, if your faculty role does not include research/creative activities, provide examples of service activities in which students and community partners are or have been collaborators. (Word limit: 300)

7. As your community-engaged scholarship develops, what impact is it currently having and do you anticipate it having on any or all of the following: (Word Limit: 1000)
   - Intellectual contributions (e.g., impact on knowledge, theory, and practice);
   - Institutionalization of community engagement (e.g., deepening and increasing community-engaged practice, involvement of undergraduate/graduate students);
   - Department (e.g., workshops, formal and informal mentoring);
   - College/School; Colleagues; Community-based collaborators; Broader communities; External institutions, systems, or policies

8. Please feel free to add anything that you haven't been able to put in the application that you think is critical to understanding your community-engaged scholarship (e.g., your engaged scholarship plans for the near future). (Word Limit: 500)

Letter of Support: Community Partner
Limit: 3 pages

Civic or Service-Learning Course Syllabus
Please submit at least one (and no more than three) civic or service-learning course syllabus(i) from the nominee. Note all submitted syllabi will be posted on Campus Compact’s website if they meet Compact criteria. Review criteria for syllabus submission here.

Supporting Documentation (Lynton Award only—optional)
You may attach up to 10 pages of supporting documentation (for example, letters of support from community partners or students, press releases, abstracts from grant proposals), which must be uploaded in a single file (compressed files are acceptable), which cannot exceed 25 MB. We do not accept links to websites. Instead, nominees should copy and paste materials from websites and include that information as part of the Supporting Documentation file.